

WANTED:

Hydrologic Technicians

Nez Perce - Clearwater National Forests

The Nez Perce - Clearwater National Forests are hiring up to six seasonal Hydrologic Technicians (GS-1316-5; $15.74/hour; GS-1316-6; $17.54/hour) to support Forest management and restoration projects. Work will be located across the Forests. Dependent on crew assignment, primary duties will include measurement of stream channel characteristics and conditions, OR inventory of forest roads and drainage structures. Road surveys involve navigating difficult terrain, typically walking abandoned and heavily vegetated road prisms and travel with ATV's (all-terrain vehicles). Stream surveys also require arduous work in rugged terrain. Remote fieldwork will require staying at Forest Service work stations or camping at primitive sites for up to 50% of the season. Crewmembers will receive a field stipend (per-diem), in addition to regular wages, when work requires overnight stays.

The Forests are looking for people who are enthusiastic and self-motivated with a responsible work-ethic and a genuine interest in forest watershed management. Selected candidates will be expected to work safely and effectively with other crew members and independently. The ability to work effectively in physically and mentally challenging field conditions is desirable. Experience in field data collection, orientation by map, photo and GPS, and outdoor skills will be valuable. This is an excellent opportunity to participate in forest watershed management efforts in a spectacular landscape.

The duration of the positions is approximately May through September, 40-hrs/week. Depending on funding and applicant schedules, employment may be extended beyond September (but not to exceed base 1039 hours). Government housing may available for the positions (dependent on specific duty station location, available space and project locations). Remote fieldwork will require staying at Forest Service work stations or camping. Employees will receive a field stipend (per-diem), in addition to regular wages, when work requires overnight stays away from their duty station.

The following positions may be filled. The exact number and specific locations of positions filled will be based on the current budget and specific project needs.
